Power to the Middle: No Labels Hosts National Conference Featuring Key U.S. House and Senate Allies and Over 600 Citizen Leaders from All 50 States

Almost Two Dozen Members of Congress Slated to be at No Labels National Meeting

(Washington, DC) – This Thursday a broad cross-section of House and Senate Democrats and Republicans will participate in No Labels’ National Meeting. They will be joined by No Labels national leaders and 600 citizen supporters from all 50 states to discuss the ideas most likely to find common ground in the next Congress.

“We’re living through one of those rare moments in history where historic changes can happen almost overnight,” said No Labels National Leader and former Dallas Mayor Mike Rawlings. “So, we need America’s leaders to come together to make decisions about domestic and foreign challenges that will define our country for decades to come. Our National Meeting is all about ensuring America has enough Democrats and Republicans in Congress who are willing to meet this moment.”

In a narrowly divided Congress, these House and Senate members are poised to play an outsized role in shaping bipartisan legislation and highlighting the issues most important to America’s commonsense majority including immigration and border security, tax and permitting reform and the national debt.

“The biggest threat facing our country isn’t external—it’s the growing polarization and tribalism tearing us apart from within,” said No Labels National Leader Dan Webb. “This meeting is about proving that there’s still a path forward for leaders who value commonsense solutions over stalemates.”
